

13th May 2010

Delegates from New World Energy recently attended the 2010 World Geothermal Congress held in Bali.

Over 2500 influential members from the World Geothermal Communities represented the 85 countries that assembled in Bali for the congress. The conference was convened by the International Geothermal Association and the Indonesian Geothermal Association and was a great success.

John Libby and Alexandra Papadakis were able to meet with various high profile companies and people by way of technical programmes, functions and networking opportunities. New World Energy is looking forward to exploring the prospect of associations with a number of these companies.

New World Energy's Senior Research Geologist, Alexandra Papadakis meeting President of Iceland, Ólafur Ragnar Grímsson.